

School Hurse of the Year

The purpose of the "School Nurse of the Year" award is to recognize the contributions of School Nurses by focusing each year on one School Nurse who has demonstrated excellence in School Nursing Practice
And Leadership in School Health.

Florida is looking for the next School Nurse of the year. The standards are high, based on the National School Nurse of the Year criteria, but we know that Florida has some awesome school nurses that have been doing an outstanding job. This is what we are looking for in our next School Nurse of the Year!!

CRITERIA FOR SELECTION

The National Association of School Nurses has certain guidelines and criteria for selection of the National School Nurse of the Year. Applications for the Florida School Nurse of the Year should follow these same guidelines. A central item in the nomination folder is a curriculum vitae that must be signed by the nominee. A curriculum vitae is longer than a typical resume because it provides a broader range of information in painting a description of the candidate's background and experience.

The curriculum vitae can include:

- Professional Objective
- Summary of Qualifications
- Professional Licenses or Certifications
- Education, including Post Graduate, Graduate, and Undergraduate Degrees and Studies
- Listing of Relevant Course Work to Match Career Objective
- Educational or Professional Honors or Awards
- Scientific or Academic Research, Laboratory Experience and Related Skills
- Description of Thesis or Dissertation, Papers Written, Publications
- Academic or Professional Presentations
- Related Extracurricular Activities, Professional and Association Memberships
- Community Involvement
- Work Experience Paid or Volunteer
- Technical and Specialized Skills
- Interests Future Academic or Professional Goals
- Travel / Exposure to Cultural Experiences
- Foreign Language Skills
- Additional Information that May Support Objective or Qualifications

One of the areas in which candidates for Florida/National School Nurse of the Year are judged is Quality of Care. In evaluating this area, nurses are judged first on demonstrated use of the Nursing Process, which includes Assessment, Diagnosis, Outcome Identification, Planning, Implementation and Evaluation. Also assessed in Quality of Care are clinical knowledge and skills and quality assurance activities.

The second major area in which Florida/National School Nurse of the year candidates are evaluated is Performance Appraisal and Ethics. Successful candidates will have demonstrated unique and creative contributions to school health in the standards of self-evaluation, evidence of current practice and professional growth, client advocacy, and client confidentiality and respect.

The third major area in which Florida/National School Nurse of the year candidates are evaluated is the Education Standard. The measurement criteria include such documentation as participation in and the providing of continuing education activities related to current clinical knowledge and professional issues. The candidate's educational background is also included in this judged area.

The fourth area in which the candidates are judged is Collegiality. Included in the judging process is documentation of interactions with peers and school personnel as colleagues. Promoting a healthy work environment by providing peers with constructive feedback, interacting with nurses and interdisciplinary colleagues to enhance professional practice and the health care of students are a part of this standard. An important element is membership in professional organizations, to include activities both as a member and the holding of an office, project facilitator, creator, etc.

The fifth major area in which Florida/National School Nurse of the year candidates are evaluated is Collaboration. Successful candidates will have demonstrated unique skills as a liaison with students, family, school staff, community agencies, and other providers.

Florida/National School Health Nurse of the Year candidates are evaluated on Research. Judging covers five different areas, with points being given for planning a research project, developing and administering the project, presenting the project, evidence that the research is applied in your school nursing practice, and the publication of the research either in an article, monograph or other professional publication.

Resource Utilization is the next area of evaluation. Half of the judging weight is given to how the school nurse utilizes resources in her job as a Case Manager or Coordinator. Candidates are also judged on their personal involvement in and with community agencies, including time and service as a member.

Communication is the next area of evaluation. Verbal, written and non-verbal skills in sharing information with and receiving information from parents are included. Communication also includes political and /or legislative involvement as a member of a legislative committee, in a documented legislative effort, in testifying before a political or legislative body. Also include documentation of contributions to school nursing literature through articles, monographs or other school professional publications.

The next area in which Florida/National School Nurse of the year candidates are evaluated is Program Management. Documentation of involvement in the development of projects within the school or community, participation in the planning and or assessment of school health services, and development and implementation of policies and procedures are included in the judging.

The last area in which Florida/National School Nurse of the year candidates are evaluated is Health Education. Successful candidates will have demonstrated unique and creative contributions to school health in the development and or evaluation of curriculum, teaching health classes and counseling students on health issues. The participation in and the promotion of staff wellness and the school nurses role as a facilitator and resource person to other educators is a part of the judging process.
